Author Bio

Been storytelling ever since I was a kid, mostly to cheer myself up. Multiple family separations & apart from siblings I wrote sweet notes & heart-felt cards for everyone in an effort to bring us together. It was my duty to make people feel wanted and connected. During that tumultuous time in my life, I was also heavily bullied throughout childhood & High School. Spent most of my life looking for a safe place. Heck, we all experience bullies today as adults. Earning a black belt in martial arts while teaching kids going through a similar path helped me to instill the art of “rocking your best self & rolling with the punches.” In this crazy life, it is my mantra to this day. My books also drive home these values. I write now to inspire my daughter who inspires me to continue reaching others who struggle with the same things as I did, searching for purpose. I write from the heart and give a big hug. My books are all things learned & felt growing up. My inspirational authors are Seuss & Munsch and like MotherGoose, my books rhyme a bunch.

A regular guy
My name's Steve
I never lie
No tricks up a sleeve
I look to the sky
& pray this eve
World pain would die
& more would achieve.

TESTIMONIALS

"I love your books – they are wonderful!

We have a Reach Out & Read Initiative in our clinic for young teen moms and their babies. We give a child a book at each visit to help support and encourage reading at home- I am going to donate the books to that program and your books are going to make a difference in a young family's life! Thank you Stephen."

Katherine Hick MD, FRCPC
Hospital for Sick Children

"Children will love the gross and disgusting aspects of this troll versus fairy story."

"The author has a gift for rhyme, Down In the Dump is a promising concept."

"Stories about witches (or suspected witches) were my favourite type of story in early elementary school. I am sure I would have enjoyed reading Old Molly Poots."

Book Excerpts

Down In The Dumpy

Sometimes you just feel Down in the Dumpy.
Noisy alarm bell, head goes thumpy.
Morning breakfast, your oatmeal's lumpy.
Same ol' outfit, baggy & frumpy.
So many things are making you jumpy
Your shoulders begin slouching down in the dumpy.
Then walking along you trip on a stumpy,
Falling in something brown and clumpy.
Quickly becoming angry & grumpy,
This entire day was BOUND to be bumpy!
Just think of home, you'll be over the humpy...

Book Excerpts

The Colour In You

On Monday, everything you touch will turn blue!
By simply, bringing out the best in you.
I bet, you haven't the slightest clue
How much power lies within you.

On Wednesday, everything you touch will turn green
Your BIG smile is becoming routine!
You're quickly becoming a grinning machine
You infectious, smiling jellybean!

It's Saturday, Yay! All you touch turns purple.
It took all week to come full circle.
Spirit blooming like a beautiful flower...
Way to display, all of your wonderful power!

Allow a smile to show
Every feeling, every shining, shimmer & glow
Through the tid-bits & the ebbs & flow
Of everyday & tomorrow...

TO MAKE LIFE A RAINBOW

Book Excerpts

To Me

I love my hair
I love my clothes
I love my belly
I love my toes
I love my hips
I love my feet
I love that I am kind & sweet
I love my hands & love my cheeks
I love my shape & love my physique
I love my fingers & love my ears
I won't let anyone bring me to tears
I love my smile & my boney knee
I love I don't need the world to agree

Love,
Me

I LOVE MY HIPS
& LOVE MY FEET

I LOVE THAT
I AM KIND & SWEET

Book Excerpts

Troll & Fairy

Wa-ha-ha! Galla-Ga Galla-Galla!
Troll want to pick on any little fella.
Troll have another thought...
Make kid smell armpit, wipe troll snot!

Ok, THAT's it!
Shoulders of giants I FIRMLY grip!
I'm the Great Fairy, Protector of Youth
Troll is about to lose a tooth!
Belittling others is an absolute sin
It's time you learned some discipline.

Sis, remember if you're scared & stuck like glue
We can always help each other get through.
Friends to the rescue!

Book Excerpts

Old Molly Poots

There once lived a lady named Old Molly Poots.
She lived all alone with a cat, named Soots.
Rumor has it, the woman's a witch!
A troublesome rumor some bad kid's pitch.
So through the winter kids pick up snow
Pelting snowballs at her window.

Never judge a book by its' cover said my mother
We should all respect and be kind to each other!
We all get to share the same space
And must carry ourselves with more grace.

Well, we don't see this everyday!
Good little spirit waving our way.
She's as sweet as you Sootsie!
Such a courageous and brave, little "Tootsie."

You're no witch with a black cat!
You're not blind and a pack rat!
You're sincere with a big heart!
But teased and picked apart!
